Approved by SSC on 11/18/2021
Submitted for Board approval on 01/19/2022

After preliminary allocations of 2021-22 funds are assigned, Hart's SPSA will receive additional Title I funds not accounted for in the original conservative budget. These additional funds will be used in the following ways:

1. Goal 1.1 New Line Item: Makerspace Technology

Amount: $10,000.00

Object Code 4310/4XXX

Hart HS would like to create a makerspace in order to increase students' grades and achievement. The money allocated would be used to purchase material and supplies needed to implement a makerspace. Items would include, but are not limited to, science kits-in-a-bag and 3-D printers to support project-based learning encompassing all subjects.

According to makerspaces.com a makerspace is a collaborative work space inside a school, library or separate public/private facility for making, learning, exploring and sharing that uses high tech to no tech tools. These spaces are helping to prepare those who need the critical 21st century skills in the fields of science, technology, engineering and math (STEM). They provide hands-on learning, help with critical thinking skills and even boost self-confidence. Some of the skills that are learned in a makerspace pertain to electronics, 3D printing, 3D modeling, coding, and robotics.

2. Goal 1.1 New Line Item: Distilled Water Dispenser for the Science Classes

Amount: $10,000.00

Object Code 6410

After reviewing the comprehensive needs assessment with input from parents, teachers and students, evidence shows that our students need more direct access to technology during the school day in order to develop technological skills needed for success in academics, college, and careers. According to Sciencing.com, access to a distillation system in the science classes assures that the outcome of science projects is fair. Because distilled water basically contains nothing in it, since it is inert, it won't affect the outcome of tests completed for science projects.

A study at Stanford University conducted by Professor Darling-Hammond found that as school districts around the country consider investments in technology in an effort to improve student outcomes, a new report from the Alliance for Excellent Education and the Stanford Center for Opportunity Policy in Education (SCOPE) finds that technology, when implemented properly, can produce significant gains in student achievement and boost engagement, particularly among students most at risk. The study identifies three important components to successfully using technology with at-risk students: interactive learning, use of technology to explore and create rather than to "drill and kill," and the right blend of teachers and technology.

Through the use of electronic subscriptions to online newspapers, students can access journals, periodicals, as well as current events. Online newspapers offer a lot of material for sociological research (reader comments, etc.), introduce another reading method, and support research across subject areas.

Salary: 20 hours @$34 per hour = $680.00
Benefits: $680 x 22.33% = $152.00

After conducting our school wide needs assessment with input from staff, parents and students the information obtained indicated a need to target incoming 9th grade students that are credit deficient and performing below grade level. We found that 2 subgroups in particular are not achieving academically across subject areas, the English Learners and Socioeconomically disadvantaged students.

Some possible reasons for the findings include, but are not limited to, language barriers which may preclude some students from accessing additional help with the required curriculum outside of the classroom, lack of support for education outside of the school setting, and lack of access to resources necessary for academic achievement.

“Fresh Start” will target incoming 9th grade students, D/F students, and EL students who did not qualify for promotion from Junior High School due to insufficient school credits. The counselor will review the student’s cum file in detail with the student and parents to determine where the academic deterioration occurred, what contributed to the deterioration and what resources are needed to get the student back on track. They will make the necessary recommendations for referrals for students who exhibit barriers to learning. They will prepare the students for High School by supplying them with the necessary school supplies, giving them access to their class schedules ahead of the school year, review in detail the high school graduation requirements and provide them with a personal school tour. The goal is to decrease D/F rates, assist struggling learners within and outside of the classroom, and improve school attendance.

According to “The Use of Data in School Counseling; Hatching Results for students, programs, and the profession”, while guidance is often provided for every student, the concept behind intentional guidance is “some kids need more”. Determining which students need more is paramount in conceptualizing intentional guidance. Thus, when aligned to the work of a school counselor, intentional guidance is a deliberate act by a school counselor to guide, lead, direct or provide purposeful interventions for students in need academically, personally, or socially. Drop-out experts recommend that schools develop early warning systems to help identify students at risk of dropping out, and they encourage schools to develop the mechanisms that trigger appropriate supports for these students.
